

American Academic

Contributors

LINDSAY ALBERT is a Senior Associate at the American Federation of Teachers in the Higher Education Department where she serves as researcher/writer. Ms. Albert is also the managing editor of the AFT Higher Education journal, American Academic. She received her master's degree in Education Policy and Leadership from Maryland University and her bachelor's degree at Gettysburg College.

ALISA FEDERICO CUNNINGHAM is the Director of Research at the Institute for Higher Education Policy where her work has addressed a broad array of higher education issues, including financing, student financial aid, minority-serving institutions, international higher education policy, and opportunities for student access and success. She received her master's degree in European Studies from the George Washington University and her bachelor's degree in Political Science/Interdisciplinary Honors from Villanova University.

GREG DUBROW is Director of Policy, Planning & Analysis for the Office of Admissions and Enrollment at the University of California, Berkeley. He teaches and writes regularly on issues of college access and equity.

JUDITH S. EATON has been president of the Council for Higher Education Accreditation (CHEA) since August 1997. Before joining CHEA, Dr. Eaton was chancellor of the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities. She has served as president of the Council for Aid to Education, vice president of the American Council on Education, president of Community College of Philadelphia, and president of the Community College of Southern Nevada.

SARAH KRICHELS GOAN is a Research Analyst at the Institute for Higher Education Policy where her work has focused on persistence and degree completions. She received her master's degree in Public Policy from the George Washington University and her bachelor's degree in Political Science from Tufts University.

LAWRENCE GOLD has been Director of the Higher Education Department of the American Federation of Teachers since 1992. The Higher Education Department provides support services to AFT locals, which represent over 100,000 faculty and professionals. Prior to joining the AFT, Mr. Gold was president of his own Washington, D.C.-based consulting firm, Public Policy Advocates.

VIRGINIA MYERS KELLY is a freelance writer who works as a consultant for the AFT, particularly for AFT On Campus. Her experience includes several years in a university publications office, running a faculty-staff newspaper. As her children grow toward college age, the thrill of success in education rings most clearly when she is enjoying thought-provoking conversations about literature, history or societal challenges with her school-age children.

ROBERT T. MUNDHENK was Director of Assessment and Senior Scholar at the American Association for Higher Education until its closing in 2005. Before that he taught English and was an AFT member for many years at Northampton Community College in Pennsylvania. He is currently an independent consultant on higher education assessment.

TERESE RAINWATER is the Program Director of the State Scholars Initiative, a federally funded program designed to encourage high school students to take a rigorous core curriculum, at the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE). Prior to joining WICHE, she worked at the Education Commission of the States and served as the project manager of the National Collaborative for Postsecondary Education Policy. She received her master's degree and Ph.D. in postsecondary education administration and foundations of education from the University of Kansas and a bachelor's degree in government from the College of Saint Benedict.

KELLY R. RISBEY is a doctoral student in the Higher Education program in the department of Educational Policy and Administration at the University of Minnesota. She is currently researching issues related to faculty workload and productivity and higher education accountability.

ROY M. VESTRICH is a professor of communication and theatre arts at Castleton State College. In a former life he wrote TV comedy, and after 15 years as a union officer he has learned the importance in negotiating the benefit of a sense a humor.

MITCHELL VOGEL is the former president of the University Professionals of Illinois, Local 4100 of the American Federation of Teachers. In addition to his service with the AFT, Vogel is Professor Emeritus at Northeastern Illinois University and former chairman of the Educational Leadership Department. He currently serves as President of the State University Retirement System of Illinois.